

Educated, by Tara Westover

Imagine sitting in a freshman college lecture and hearing the word " Holocaust" for the first time, or being in a writers group having never read a short story. Author Tara Westover shares her quest for an education in her memoir Educated.

Ms. Westover was raised in a fundamentalist, Mormon family and never attended public school. She lived in a dangerous, sometimes violent environment. Yet she had a strong drive to attend college which started her amazing academic career.

We had a spirited discussion of this book and would highly recommend it.
